

Bombs Prove Castro Has Opposition

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

HAVANA, (AP) — A wave of bombings by enemies of Prime Minister Fidel Castro has spread from Havana to provincial cities. Explosions were reported Monday in Camaguey, Matanzas, Jovellanos and Havana. Sugar cane fields also were burned.

Free bombings in Havana Monday night injured seven persons.

At Matanzas, bombs exploded in two schools and at Jovellanos in a movie theater. No casualties were reported.

In Camaguey a noise bomb went off near a crowd gathered to hear officials denounce a leaflet raid by opposition groups Sunday night. Two persons were arrested.

Cane fields were burned at Mariel in north Matanzas Province, an area where insurgent activities have been reported in the past few days. Castro has repeatedly blamed past burnings on "Yankee imperialists," supposedly trying to destroy Cuba's main cash crop. He had used cane field burnings in his own revolution against the Fulencio Batista dictatorship.

Bombings in Havana have become more or less routine in recent weeks.

One bomb shattered the rest room of a crowded downtown cafe at midnight. Another blasted lighting fixtures in the busy Vedado district, tunnel under the Almen dars River and disrupted traffic for a half hour. The third bomb merely caused noise.

Opposition to the heeded dictator among labor groups was evident as the giant Cuban Labor Confederation summoned leaders of member unions to boot out the bosses of the rebellious Electrical Workers Union—the first workers group to stand up openly in defiance of Castro.

Armando Fraguas, boss of the electricians, led his union in a march on the Presidential Palace Friday evening, shouting "Cuba is Russia no." Fraguas sought a conference with President Osvaldo Dorticos.

Fraguas and Fidel Iglesias, another Electrical Workers leader, have been termed traitors by the Labor Confederation.

The government-controlled confederation now appears ready to strip both men of authority.

Two Injured In Accident Here

An auto driven by County Judge Elmer Orio Byers crashed into the rear of an auto driven by Robert M. Scott of Hot Springs early last night on Highway 67 east, inside the city limits.

Harris of Hot Springs, sustained back and head injuries. Mr. Byers escaped injury, the officers reported. Both vehicles were heavily damaged.

Man Refuses to Testify in Boxing Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Frank (Blinky) Palermo invoked the Fifth Amendment today, refusing to answer some questions put to him by Senate boxing investigators. He refused to say whether he even knows heavyweight contender Sonny Liston.

The Philadelphia rackets figure was warned he might face a citation for contempt of Congress. Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate subcommittee investigating alleged mobster influence on boxing, told Palermo the constitutional protection against self-incrimination does not extend to some of the questions asked. The chairman said he would recommend a citation.

Palermo promptly invoked the Fifth Amendment after the subcommittee refused to excuse him from testifying.

He pleaded that answers to questions about his business affairs "might tend to incriminate me."

The Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee had summoned him for questioning about testimony linking his name with alleged bribe offers to the Williams, former lightweight boxing champion while Palermo was his manager.

Kefauver said he also wanted to hear from Palermo about his association with Liston. No. 1 contender for the heavyweight title, and with Jake LaMotta, former middleweight champion, who has testified he threw a bout in 1947.

Liston sat at a corner of a press table waiting his turn to testify. The subcommittee has heard testimony that a large share of Liston's earnings goes to mobsters.

Belgians in Welcome to Mr. Herter

By EDDY GILMORE

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Belgium today gave Secretary of State Christian A. Herter an austere but diplomatically proper welcome as he arrived to represent President Eisenhower at celebrations for King Baudouin's wedding. He will miss the wedding itself because of urgent diplomatic business in Paris.

It was Herter's first visit to Brussels since the nationwide anger here last summer when the United States gave Patrice Lumumba a cordial Washington welcome. The Belgians felt it was too cordial after the atrocities against Belgian settlers while Lumumba was premier of the Congo. Resentment against the United States has died down now but Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny was not at the airport when Herter arrived nor was his chief of protocol. The official greeter was the chief of the Foreign Ministry's international cooperation division. There was no brass band and no honor guard.

State Band to the Inaugural

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas State College's marching band will participate in the Presidential Inaugural Parade at Washington on Jan. 20 as Arkansas' official band, it was announced today.

The Arkansas State band was invited by the Arkansas Inaugural Committee through Harold Jenkins of Fayetteville, regional representative of the Democratic National Committee.

The band has almost 100 members. Don Mux is the director.

Bulletin

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Antoine Gizenga, former deputy premier to Patrice Lumumba, today proclaimed himself the Congo's only legitimate ruler. He proclaimed the rebel city of Stanleyville his capital.

Gizenga cabled United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld that he has taken over the premier's job left vacant by Lumumba's arrest and has transferred the national capital from Leopoldville to Stanleyville. The U.N. Congo Mission immediately notified the ambassadors in Leopoldville of Gizenga's desperate challenge to the pro-Western regime of President Joseph Kasavubu and Col. Joseph Mobutu.

Labor Chiefs Declare War on U. S. Probe

By HUBERT ERB

OAKLAND Calif. (AP) — Two powerful independent labor leaders—James Hoffa of the Teamsters and Harry Bridges of the West Coast Longshoremen—declared war Monday night on what they called government attempts to plague organized labor.

They trained their verbal guns on the Landrum-Griffin labor law and the U. S. Senate Labor-Management Committee at a joint meeting of their unions' membership in Civic Auditorium.

"Hoffa and I are committed to unity and action," Bridges declared. "We can't worry about the McClellans, Kennedys, politicians and employers, we've got to fight."

Hoffa addressed the crowd of about 4000 by telephone from Washington, D. C.

"We're in for the fight of our lives," he said. "If we don't progress at the bargaining table, if our demands for an increased share in the standard of living are not met, we'll strike."

Hoffa, under subpoena to appear before the Senate committee in Washington has asked cancellation of Wednesday's hearing to enable him to fly here for the joint meeting. A postponement to Jan. 10 was ordered but too late for Hoffa to make the trip across the continent.

Reds Increase Number of Rockets

LONDON (AP)—Defense Minister Harold Watkinson said today the Soviet Union has greatly increased the number of medium-range rockets "all around the Russian fringe territories."

Watkinson told the House of Commons in a defense debate this increase in Soviet missile development would, in the Western view be balanced by U.S. nuclear-powered submarines armed with Polaris missiles.

Polaris also would strengthen the capacity of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to retaliate after any nuclear attack has taken place, the minister said.

Worst Winter Blizzard Leaves Death Toll 150

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zero temperatures today followed the Northeast's worst winter blizzard and blocked efforts to get traffic rolling normally.

The death toll mounted to more than 150 from heart attacks caused by overexertion in snow shoveling or attempts to push stalled automobiles, from skidding vehicles and from exposure to cold.

The temperature dropped to 29 degrees below zero in Jefferson County in northwest Pennsylvania and to 14 below in Wyoming County near Buffalo, N.Y.

Mercury readings were at a low for the date in many areas—1 below in Pittsburgh, Pa., 3 above in Philadelphia and 7.4 above in New York City.

In New York, where commuters were lucky to get to work at all Monday, they struggled in on trains and buses that ran behind schedules.

Railroad problems were caused by icing of equipment and the loading of greater numbers of passengers—many of whom ordinarily drive their automobiles to work.

Buses were hampered by drifts, ruts in plowed stretches of road, and overloads of passengers.

A bright sun shone in most of the hardest hit areas, from Virginia to Canada, but snow was reported still falling in Ontario, where it had reached a depth of 25 inches.

A deer hunter, Thomas Mroczkowski, 17, of Perth Amboy, was missing in snowbound High Point State Park in New Jersey's Sussex County. A helicopter and ground searches sought the youth, missing since Monday.

The depth of the snow and drifts was reflected by the plight of a woman in Edison, N.J. She reported her small foreign car stuck.

Corning Seeks Way to Build School

CORNING, Ark. (AP) — Corning has started a new $250,000 elementary school. Now all it has to do is figure out how to pay for it.

The school board contracted for the $250,000 12-classroom school to replace one destroyed by fire in 1959. Construction started last month.

But last Tuesday voters rejected 541-341 a seven-mill tax increase to pay for the school.

Board members said classes will meet in churches and other temporary quarters while they try to solve the problem.

Group to Air W. Virginia Labor Problem

By JACK DAVIS

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) —
The skillful shadow of West Virginia looms oppressively over Washington this week.

It's a symbolic shadow, representing the challenge President elect John F. Kennedy and his special citizens' committee face in trying to halt creeping unemployment throughout the nation and to revitalize its economically depressed areas.

The citizens' committee, a task force of 21 business, labor, scholastic and government representatives, was appointed by Kennedy two weeks ago. The members held their organization meeting here last Friday.

They plan to convene again in Washington Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to draw up some measures which Kennedy can act on soon after he takes the oath on Jan. 20.

West Virginia is certain to play an important role in Kennedy's revitalization program.

The state is an ideal guinea pig.
Its unemployment woes are representative of the majority of depressed areas pockets — a labor force left stagnant by changing economic conditions and shifting markets.

The committee chairman, Sen.
Paul Douglas, D-Ill., said the task force will have specific recommendations in Kennedy's hands by New Year's Day.

He implied economy-rebuilding programs will be launched almost immediately by presidential directives after Kennedy takes office.

Say Congress to Take It Slow

NOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., has said he thinks the new Congress will move slowly toward new legislation and he doesn't foresee any drastic measures.

However, Mills added he will work for some form of tax relief during the new administration. He believes the new Congress will not help states meet unemployment, water pollution and other problems.

Mills spoke Saturday at a meeting of the Arkansas-Kansas-Missouri-Oklahoma Hotel Association here.

New officers elected at the meeting were: president, Robert Eubanks, Little Rock; vice presidents, John Asimos, Hot Springs and Gene Smith, Helena; secretary-treasurer, Bob Acord, Little Rock, and sergeant-at-arms, Ben Shalley, Little Rock.

Re-trial for Mrs. Rand Is Planned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An immediate re-trial will be sought for Mrs. Virginia Rand of Rogers, whose second-degree murder conviction was overturned by the Arkansas Supreme Court Monday.

Prosecutor Ted P. Coxsey said at Berryville Monday night that he had not conferred with court officials, but added the state desires an immediate trial.

Mrs. Rand was sentenced to eight years imprisonment in the fatal shooting of H.V. (Buddy)

Clark, a Rogers restaurant owner, on Aug. 9, 1959. He was shot to death in Mrs. Rand's bedroom.

The 40-year-old Mrs. Rand testified at her Bentonville trial that Rogers forced his way into her house while her husband was away.

The state contended that the shooting climaxed a lover's quarrel.

In overturning the conviction, the high court said the jury which sentenced Mrs. Rand was allowed to hear considerable testimony which should have been excluded.

Farmers Vote on Cotton Quotas

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Farmers in Southern and Southwestern states, including Arkansas, vote today on whether federal controls should be continued on upland cotton and rice.

The marketing quotas will be continued if two-thirds of those voting give their approval.

Upland cotton is grown on about 60,000 Arkansas farms and rice on about 5,000.

stolen. Police found it just where she had parked it near her home. It was buried under a snowdrift. Snowdrifts, which reached the height of 10 feet in New Jersey, formed again behind snow plows blocking their way down main roads. In many cases side streets which were left untouched became playgrounds for children and their sleds.
In the New York area, many suburban schools remained closed. Railroads operated with substantial delays, and buses crawled along snowy streets on curtailed schedules. Airports struggled to clear runways and maintain them against the ever-drifting snow and drastically cut the number of flights planned.

In New York City, public and parochial schools opened but excused those pupils who depend on buses to get to class. The extreme cold preserved every bit of the record now accumulation for a prewinter storm. Only the blizzards of 1888 and 1947, which occurred during the official winter period, produced a greater snowfall.

Some sunshine was expected during the day, with diminishing winds and slightly moderating temperatures. No real relief was in sight until Wednesday, when the mercury was expected to climb into the 30s in the afternoon, bringing some thawing and help to the shovellers.

The violence of the storm brought varied disasters and troubles up and down the coast.

Braves Storm and Wife Has Triplets
NEW YORK (AP)—"That last block felt like two miles," James Quinn said after he got his wife to a hospital through Monday's snow storm in time to deliver triplets.
The triplets live only two blocks from Northern Westchester Hospital in New York's suburban area, but their car stalled in the snow after going only a block. Quinn was plenty worried, got a neighbor to drive them the last and longest block.
The triplets arrived four hours later and were named, James, Stephen and Deborah.
In New York City, a plow cleared a path to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Davis where a boy was born prematurely. Patrolman Carmine Dragonetti helped deliver a baby to Mrs. Ulysses McManis, who was stranded and Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy drove Patricia Seibell to a hospital in time for still another birth. Vincent Seibell had flagged down the commissioner's car when he couldn't find a taxi to move his wife.

Carlton suffered lacerations on the face when falling debris struck him.
Only Festinger was hospitalized. Festinger said the loss was partly covered by insurance.

Husband Can Get Coffee — His Wife Is On Strike
By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE
Dear Helen:
I'm a wife on strike. The warm of 25 years has turned. I've taken my husband's insults long enough—40 years.
I make coffee every night for him. But this particular night I just wouldn't bring coffee and cake in the living room. He asked where it was. I said "If you want coffee, go get it yourself."
He got so angry, said I was rotten and no good and went to bed. We didn't speak for a whole week. All these years I've been putting up with his lunch for him. Where he works they have a cafeteria. I asked him to buy his lunch for a change. He said "I was crazy."
I do all the papering and painting, cementing, moving, planting. He won't do a thing. We own our home and if I don't get things done, the house stays as is. I'm sick and tired of it all. Help me!
Dear R.: Don't weaken. No matter what your husband says, let the bully wait on himself. The more you do for some men, the more you'll have to do.
Any sensitive, self-respecting woman shrinks from constant bickering and quarreling. But there comes a time when she must take the aggressive. You should have taken it long before!

A short while back two girls who described themselves as the normal, who's-her-type and signed their names "Wondering Freshmen," sent up a plaintive wall. Boys were by-passing them for the sexy ones.
"What so," says a young California "Please tell those 'Wondering Freshmen' that only boys who aren't serious about marriage or girls, fall for the sexy type. Boys of good taste and background much prefer normal, wholesome girls. —Interested?"
Which is just about what I told the "Wondering Freshmen." That house lilies and night-blooming cereus will quickly

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

© Noel Loomis 1960. Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Chapter I

The "silver waters of the Quilata" were bubbling along over a bed of golden sand as they had done in 1841 when the ill-fated Texan-Santa Fe pioneers had stumbled into the valley from the east. Even then it had been a place of violence, for five of those men had been massacred by the deadly Kiowas.

The plains and the breaks had resounded with gunfire from Captain Baldwin's fantastic Wagon Train Charge, Billy Dixon's incredible stand at Buffalo Wallow, Mackenzie's slaughter of 2,000 Cheyenne horses to break the back of Indian resistance, and the heroic but tragic fight of the Quantrails in Blanco Canyon and their subsequent retreat northwest in the face of a paralyzing steel storm.

That violence, Bart Wagner knew, as he sat his black horse above the Quilata, was not over. Perhaps, indeed, it was only the beginning, for now, six years after the first Texan had settled on the High Plains, the nearest court still was 200 miles away, and outlaws were practically a business in the Panhandle.

He shook his head. Probably it was weariness and hunger and the pain of the bullet that was heavy in his left arm. And he reminded himself that, as of that moment, the outlaws were pretty well in control of the land; and if he should run into them down there along the stream, he could not expect them to have much sympathy for an ex-lawman.

It did not seem reasonable that the outlaws of Tascosa would follow him, but the Caprock was a had place to be cornered. Far below, three men were logging it up the creek, but, as he watched, they turned off and rode at a walk toward a sod ranch house. He watched for a moment as they rode to the back door, and a woman opened the door. It was too far for him to hear voices, but he saw nothing unusual in their actions. In a swift glance he followed the creek north to where it turned east beyond a hill. A little farther north the Prairie Dog Town Park of Red River flowed east.

Somewhere to the east, perhaps beyond the first low hills of the breaks, was Charles Goodnight's famous JA ranch and his headquarters. Bart expected to end up there before long.

His empty stomach growled, and he kicked the black toward the path that led down the precipitous canyon wall. He eased his left arm in the sling, and held it in against his side to avoid hitting it on the rocks that occasionally jutted into the path. His arm had come to ache considerably since he had left Tascosa, and he gritted his teeth as he dodged an overhanging cedar tree root.

Both he and the black needed rest and food. The black had had only a few hours of poor grazing since they had left Fort Union, 250 miles west — and nothing since they had left Tascosa, 50 miles northwest.

He was almost at the bottom, and saw that black-and-white barred chickens were scattered around the corral. Then the three men, with wild yells, rode at a hard gallop toward the creek, and Bart frowned. He glanced back again at the ranch house and saw smoke coming up from a shed. The woman was running clumsily in her long dress, with a heavy bucket in one hand.

The black stepped out on level ground; it smelled the water and wanted to go, but Bart turned it toward the burning shed and dug his heels into its flanks. The black jumped over a green-and-purple tumbleweed and lined out toward the shed. Smoke was rolling up in clouds, and red flames burst out from the roof.

He slid the black to a stop, leaped off at the same time, and ran to meet the woman. She was struggling with the heavy wooden pail, forced to use both hands to carry it, and trying at the same time to avoid tripping on her dress, which brushed the hard-packed earth.

She let him take the water without a word, and ran at once back toward the house — probably to get another pail.

The roof of the shed was burning fiercely, and he did not waste the water on the flames. A dozen sacks of shelled corn were stacked on the rough flooring, and the top sacks were beginning to smoke from the heat above.

He went as close as he could and drenched the sacks. He could not go in long enough to move even one sack, for the dry cottonwood rafters burned hot. By that time one day in jail. Notice of appeal.

and the fire had settled down to blue, almost smokeless flames as the bigger pieces of cottonwood, dry and cracked, burned with startling rapidity.

He dropped the bucket and seized a fence post from a pile at the other end of the shed. He went as close as he could to the fire, and used the post to knock away the brush so the fire would not carry. He ran back to the creek for more water, and she met him there with a brass kettle. They drenched the sacks of corn. Then he got the post and began to knock the blazing roof-skeleton apart. His hand arm was painful and somewhat clumsy, but by the time the fire reached the place where he had knocked away the brush, he had it under control. He stopped, breathing hard, and looked at her, dusty and panting. Soot had settled under her eyes, and she looked forlorn but somehow still proud.

"Was it set on purpose?" he asked.

She nodded.

He glanced down at his hand, where blood dripped from the ends of his fingers. The woman saw the blood, and her eyes widened. "Leave your rig under the cottonwood in front of the house," she said, looking up. "You need some attention."

He nodded as he pulled the bandanna sling back into place. He mounted the black slowly, almost too tired to get into the saddle, and rode around the house while she walked to the back door with the empty pail and the brass kettle.

The dog did not raise its head when he approached. The chickens, scattered over the yard, did not walk or scratch, but lay on their sides, motionless. He turned to look back. In spite of the excitement of the fire, a horse lay on its side in the pole corral, also motionless. A medium-size wagon stood near the corral — a Conestoga-type wagon such as a family might have used to come cross-country. He paused at the rain barrel to drink.

His eyes narrowed as he looked in the entire scene. He was not alone, but it was difficult to tell his age. His skin was weathered like a saddle skirt, and he had two straight, vertical marks at each side of his mouth, and a fine web of lines at the corner of each eye.

into many blazing suns, into one man's share of bone-chilling blue northers, into countless days of searing hot winds.

He noted the Quarter Circle JB Connected, burned into the rough-hewn cottonwood planks with a running iron, then observed a small black ribbon fastened under the brand with a square nail, and noted that the latch string was not out. "There's real glass in the windows. The cost of freighting glass down from Dodge was so high that no rancher would do it unless a woman insisted."

He made out a mound of earth to one side of the cottonwood, in a small clump of willow saplings. A few wilted — but not dried-up — beargrass blooms were on top of the mound, and he knew the grave was only a few hours old.

He heard the dry scrape of the opening door, and turned to look into a rifle muzzle. He was still most too tired to get into the saddle, and rode around the house while she walked to the back door with the empty pail and the brass kettle.

"I told you to leave your rig under the tree," she said. He frowned, glanced at the grave and back at the rifle, and finally at the woman in the open doorway. He said, "Isn't that old Sharps pretty heavy for you?"

She ignored. "A body never knows who is friend and who is enemy."

He said, "I just helped you."

"That's why I haven't pulled the trigger — yet," she said. "Your husband gone for supper? A saddle skirt, and he had two straight, vertical marks at each side of his mouth, and a fine web of lines at the corner of each eye."

I'd like you to join us at a special get-together of ranchers, dairymen and farmers in this area to discuss an important problem common to all — "poor-doing" animals. I have arranged for an authority to show you some unique and amazing new ideas in animal nutrition that can stop unthriftiness in your herd or flock. I refer to 'PERMACO' extended-action cobalt "bullets".

You'll learn how a group of beef animals doing so poorly that a few died, caught up with the rest of the herd within 4 weeks... how a dairy herd on the National Honor Roll increased milk production by 12%... how a ewe on her last legs regained frisky health in a matter of days! This should be a bang-up meeting, and I'm looking forward to seeing you there!

Packers Have at Least Tie for Crown

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer
The Green Bay Packers have clinched a tie for their first Western Conference title since 1944, apparently ending the Baltimore Colts' two-year reign as National Football League kings.

And the Packers seem to have gotten one of their biggest assists from a former Vanderbilt star named Billy Wade, who engineered the Los Angeles Rams to a 10-3 victory over the Colts Sunday.

Wade ran 66 yards for the deciding touchdown as the Rams prevented the defending world champions from tying the Packers for first place in the West. Green Bay broke a three-way tie Saturday, sloshing to a 13-0 victory over San Francisco in the mud of Kezar Stadium.

However, the Colts' loss, and a 23-14 Detroit victory over Dallas has created another three-way tie—this time for second place—in the conference. Baltimore, San Francisco and the Lions, each 6-5, trail Green Bay by a game. The Packers are 7-4, with the regular season coming to a close this weekend.

Then, Los Angeles will try to play spoiler twice in a row, meeting Green Bay while the Colts play San Francisco. Detroit needs the Chicago Bears, creating the possibility of a three-way tie if the Packers lose and two of the other three win.

The Bears were eliminated by Cleveland, 42-0, with the latter retaining a half game edge for second place in the Eastern Conference over the New York Giants. The Giants, plagued by five inches of snow in Washington, beat the Redskins, 17-3, to set up a showdown for runnerup in the East next Sunday with the Browns.

The Eastern champion Philadelphia Eagles suffered their first loss since opening day as Pittsburgh held on for a 27-21 upset.

In the American League, Houston clinched the Eastern championship with a 31-23 triumph over Buffalo after Los Angeles had grabbed the Western title by defeating Denver 41-33 in a Saturday game. Dallas thumped Boston 34-0 and New York edged Oakland 31-20 on Sunday's program.

The Rams (3-0-1) completely humiliated Baltimore's offensive-laden Colts, snapping Johnny Unitas' TD-a-game streak at 47 while handing the reeling champs their third straight setback.

Baltimore, failing to score a touchdown for the first time since a 1956 loss to Detroit, took a 3-0 lead in the first quarter on Steve Myhra's nine-yard field goal. It stood up until Wade electrified the crowd of 73,461 in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum.

Although he failed to connect for a TD, Unitas gained 182 yards through the air and broke the NFL one-season record for yards gained passing with 2,939. That eclipsed Sammy Baugh's 1947 mark by one yard.

Hornung, who has scored a record 165 points, kicked a 38-yard field goal with 51 seconds remaining in the first half for what proved to be all the points Green Bay needed in their muddy showdown struggle with the 49ers.

Quarterback Earl Morrall, getting the starting assignment after his last-play 65-yard TD heave beat the Colts last week, guided the Lions to the triumph that made Dallas (0-11-1) the first NFL team since 1944 to go through a season without a victory. Nickleter and started the Giants moving.

Piotrosante scored twice for De-ting.
